

MESSAGE RECEIVED FROM TSAKOS GROUP ATHENS

On the occasion of CIRM's 90th anniversary, we extend our warmest congratulations and sincere appreciation for the remarkable service you are providing to the global seafaring community.

For nearly a century, CIRM has stood as a pillar of excellence in maritime medical care—offering free, reliable, professional, and compassionate assistance to seafarers across the globe, around the clock. From the era of Morse signals to today's cutting-edge satellite and digital technologies, CIRM has consistently embraced innovation to fulfil its mission of safeguarding the health and well-being of those at sea with dedication, foresight, and humanity.

At the Tsakos Group, we have long benefited from CIRM's valuable services and have experienced firsthand the critical role you play in supporting the health and safety of our seafarers. Our deep-rooted commitment to safeguarding the health and welfare of those at sea is also closely tied to the vision of Dr Irene Saroglou-Tsakos, who dedicated most of her professional life to advancing seafarer care. With remarkable dedication and compassion, she pioneered early efforts in remote medical support and onboard first aid—well before the era of modern telemedicine. Her legacy continues to shape our values today, making CIRM's mission and achievements profoundly significant to us.

Your service has positively impacted the lives of countless seafarers in our fleet, and we are proud to support your work through dedicated sponsorships and ongoing collaboration. We are particularly encouraged by your continued forward-thinking initiatives, embracing the latest advancements in digitalization, telemedicine, and medical data confidentiality. These efforts not only demonstrate your commitment to innovation but also reflect your profound respect and care for the dignity and well-being of those you serve.

We join you in celebrating this remarkable milestone and extend our best wishes for many more years of continued success and impactful contribution to the global maritime community.

Warmest congratulations from all of us at the Tsakos Group!
